

- Nov. 10—Football boys receive roses promised by Miss Duncan. "Dere Mabel" visited Miss Bates' school today. Dere is not a she, but is a dear just the same. Girls' rooting club formed. Mary Vivian Ziliak elected yell leader.
- Nov. 13—Helen Davison starts on her campaign to get a date for the fall festival.
- Nov. 20—(S. C.)
- Nov. 24—Although Helen did not captivate Harold Laib, she did get a date, so her campaign was not in vain.
- Nov. 26—Out for four days' vacation.
- Nov. 27—Coal is scarce, but let winter come on. The girls have their ears banked.
- Dec. 8—Miss Hancock asserts herself. To Charles Scull: "I notice so often, Charles, you act as if you were a child in classroom and assembly. It is just a little noticeable."
- Dec 12—In attempting to give a few words of appreciation to the high school, on behalf of the student body, Elizabeth Milburn becomes confused and gives her "frank" in place of her thanks.
- Dec 18—Miss Hancock says that to teach her hard-headed Latin pupils, who are so antagonistic, she would have to wear kid gloves and get behind a fence!
- Dec. 19—Miss Hancock remarks that she is getting sick and tired of teaching, for she is living a dog's life in Princeton. The last day of school before Christmas vacation.
- Jan. 5—School begins another spasm.
- Jan. 11—Barrett Cockrum, Jr., arrives.
- Jan. 19—Examinations begin.
- Jan. 23—Senior girls give Leap Year party at the home of Margaret Noble. The girls were not backward in asking for dates.
- Jan. 26—New term of school begins.
- Jan. 27—Mr. Cockrum inaugurates a new plan for dismissing at noon and in the afternoon. He has placed the Victrola on the platform and we march out to the stirring strains of "Stars and Stripes Forever."
- Feb. 6—Try-out for the Vincennes debate. Twelve in the contest.
- Feb. 16—There was evidently something omitted in the class will of 1919, namely, that Hazel Spencer failed to will the guardianship of Fitz Funk to Helen Davison. Nevertheless, Helen has taken upon herself the responsibilities of this place. Go slow, Helen!
- Feb. 19—This is a very important date. Some of our little Senior girls "stepped out" to the show with some venturesome boys and a teacher. For instance: Dorothy Wolfe with Maurice Wilkinson, Shirley Ryan with
