

FRY, E W

E. W. FRY, D.V.S., a well-known young veterinary surgeon practicing at Portland, with offices at 138 East Main street, has. not long been a resident of this county but during even this short period of residence has attracted much and favorable attention among the farmers and horsemen of the county by reason of his skill as a practitioner. Doctor FRY is a native of the neighboring "Buckeye" state, born in Darke county, Ohio, February 7, 1898, and is a son of Edgar and Margaret (LYTLE) FRY, both of whom also were born in Ohio. From the days of his boyhood Doctor FRY has been attracted to the science of veterinary surgery. Immediately following his graduation from the Ansonia, Ohio high school in 1917 he entered the Indiana Veterinary College at Indianapolis and after four years of study there was graduated from that institution with the class of 1921. Upon receiving his diploma Doctor FRY located at Portland, where in May, 1921, he became engaged in the practice of his profession in association with Dr. J. S. CULBERTSON, but a few months later opened an office. of his own and has since been engaged in practice alone. The Doctor was the youngest member of his class in the Indiana Veterinary College and is one of the youngest, if not the youngest, licensed veterinary surgeons in the state. On October 2, 1921, a few months after having become established in practice at Portland, Dr. E. W. FRY was united in marriage to Lota JOHNSTON, a graduate nurse, daughter of D. M. and Minnie JOHNSTON, of Indianapolis, and he and his wife reside at the corner of Main and Wayne streets in Portland. Mrs. FRY was graduated from the Fletcher Sanitarium school of nurses at Indianapolis in 1919 and for some time prior to her marriage had been following the profession of trained nurse. Doctor and Mrs. FRY have a pleasant home and since taking up their residence in Portland have taken an interested and helpful part in the general social and cultural activities of the city.
