Gas From Coal Fumes Cause Death

Frank Weldon (Don) Orcutt, age 48, died at his home in Portland Friday night, following seven weeks illness, having suffered a gas attack from coal fumes at the office of the Portland Sun where he was employed. He was a veteran of the Spanish-American War, also of the World War. Mrs. S. W. Crozier, of Ridgeville, is a sister. A military funeral was held Monday afternoon at the United Brethren church in Portland.
