

ARCH MARTIN

Source: Crawfordsville Daily Journal 1 Nov 1894 p 3

Yesterday afternoon Arch Martin had his hand torn almost to shreds by a corn husker. He is selling these machines and was showing one of them to a farmer north of Waynetown when the accident occurred. There was no surgeon near and he drove 12 miles in the cold to Crawfordsville before his hand received the attention of Dr. Ensminger. It is probably he will lose several fingers. - kbz

=

Source: Crawfordsville Daily Journal 2 Nov 1894 p 3

Arch Martin of Crawfordsville, while trying to unchoke a corn husking machine last Wednesday evening at Quillen Groves got his hand caught and pretty nearly torn off.

The website management appreciates all the contributions provided for use here.