Robert Oldshue is seriously ill at his home on Cross Street. About six o'clock on Friday morning Joe Lambert heard a noise in the Oldshue barn and he and Elmer Barker found Mr. Oldshue lying on the floor in an unconscious state. They supposed he had fallen from the loft. He soon recovered so as to be able to go to his house. The same evening he suffered a paralytic stroke and is now lying in critical condition. He is not able to take any nourishment.
