

CHARLEY SCHUYLER

Source: Crawfordsville Star July 14, 1874 p 3

Charley Schuyler, the foreman in the McGillis Brewery, we are informed by Mr. Geo. Hough, came very near passing beyond this "vale of tears" a day or two since, while in the act of repairing their pump. He was hanging in the well with elbows resting on a board which unexpectedly gave way and "Charley" was barely able to support himself a sufficient time to enable those near by to rescue him. Had his hold failed him, almost instant death would doubtless have been the results - kbz