

1898 Atlas

Source: Crawfordsville Journal 2-25-1898

The new atlas of Montgomery County just completed by F. Hoffman, City ENgineer of Crawfordsville, is pronounced by persons qualified to judge as first-class and above the average in accuracy. It contains complete maps of each town and township, giving the size of lots, sizes of farms, names of owners, etc. Also praised values of lands, location of houses and other matters of interest. THE roads are shown, the gravel roads being indicated as such. It also contains large, double-paged maps of Indiana, the United States and world, together with valuable statistics. It also contains a complete gravel road map of the county, giving in all about 1,000 miles of roads of which 500 are graveled. It also contains valuable treatises on civil government, surveying and civil engineering. The work represents about a year's hard work and a cash outlay of $1,000. The book sells for $10. - kbz
