

CAMPBELL's CHAPEL - once covered in lake

Source: Crawfordsville Star, Nov 2, 1875 p 1

"Campbell's Chapel News" – Mr. John Collett, a geological surveyor visited Lye Creek Thursday for the purpose of hunting some relics of olden time, and making inquiry about the place. He says that the prairie there was once a great lake of water and when Mr. Alex. Campbell told of the different curiosities he had plowed up since he had lived there, he said that this country had at one time been inhabited by the Indians; and also at that time these people obtained all their fish from the lakes that here abounded.
